AIM & SCOPE

Etruscan Studies: Journal of the Etruscan Foundation is the leading scholarly publication on Etruscology and Italic Studies in the English language. The journal details activity in all areas of research and study related to Etruscan and pre-Roman Italy and publishes articles as well as reviews of meetings, exhibitions, and publications of interest to the professional community.

The journal invites submissions of original research in all disciplines relating to Etruscan and Italic Studies, such as archaeology, archaeometry, art history, epigraphy, and history. Archaeological site reports, either annual or multi-year, are also welcome. Submissions may be in English, French, German or Italian, but the final publication will be in English. All articles are peer-reviewed.

Founded in 1994, Etruscan Studies is a publication of the Etruscan Foundation. For information about the foundation and becoming a member, please visit www.etruscanfoundation.org. Members receive a complimentary subscription to Etruscan Studies.

INSTRUCTIONS FOR AUTHORS

The journal invites submissions of original research in all disciplines relating to Etruscan and Italic studies, such as archaeology, archaeometry, art history, epigraphy, and history. Archaeological site reports, either annual or multi-year, are also welcome. Submissions may be in English, French, German, or Italian, but the final publication will be in English.

Authors interested in submitting articles for consideration should send them to the editor electronically in WORD format including scans of all illustrations. Do not send originals of drawings or photographs unless requested to do so by the editor. Final versions of articles that are accepted for publication must be submitted electronically in WORD format. At the time of final submission, original illustrations and permissions must be included.

All articles are reviewed by two scholars in addition to the Editor. While the members of the Etruscan Studies Editorial Board often serve as reviewers, manuscripts are also screened by other international experts. While book reviews are not peer-reviewed, they will be read by the Editor prior to publication.

In accordance with the principles established by the Archaeological Institute of America as outlined in the American Journal of Archaeology 94 (1990) 525-527, Etruscan Studies will not be the vehicle for the initial scholarly presentation of objects in private or public collections acquired after December 30, 1973, unless the object can be documented as part of a previously existing collection or has been legally exported from the country of origin. For styles and conventions, please refer to the "Instructions for Contributors" of the American Journal of Archaeology at <http://www.ajaonline.org/pdfs/AJAInstructions2011.pdf>; and for questions not addressed by the AJA, please refer to the Chicago Manual of Style (16th edition).

ILLUSTRATIONS

Photography submitted electronically must be scanned at a minimum resolution of 600 dpi at 100 percent of the author's preferred size of printed reproduction. Illustrations, maps and other line drawings or line art should also be scanned at a minimum resolution of 1200 dpi at 100 percent of the author's preferred size of printed reproduction. Vector art will also be accepted. Originals of all submitted scanned artwork and maps with associated text should be crisp, clean and free of scratches, marks or fuzziness to assure the best reproduction in the finished publication.

BOOKS FOR REVIEW

Books for review and news of colloquia, exhibitions, and other events should be sent to the Editor at the above address.
